Clubs and Organizations

Policy/Procedure

Student organizations at Dickinson complete the pursuit of knowledge as individual talents, skills, values and social experiences are developed through involvement. The benefits of being actively involved with campus organizations and activities are numerous. Students learn about themselves and the way organizations function, while making significant contributions to the College community.

In order to be eligible for campus privileges, such as reserving campus facilities, vehicles, sponsoring fund raisers and obtaining office space, all student organizations must be registered with Student Activities every semester, recognized by the College and attend an organizational orientation session. Student activities coordinates the registration process for all student clubs and organizations at the beginning of each semester, and the Student Senate oversees most of the recognition process and recommends recognition to the Dean of Students.

In order to have your club or organization recognized you will need:

- A statement of purpose for the organization
- A list of interested members, including a list of officers (totaling at least 15 individuals)
- A constitution (guidelines are available in the Student Senate office)

Contact the Constitutional Affairs & Election Committee (CAEC) Chair at the Student Senate office (x8022) or by e-mail at senate@dickinson.edu or senate2@dickinson.edu for more details. CAEC also reviews all existing student clubs and organizations every two years, encouraging all groups to keep their governance and procedures up to date.
