

My name is Becca Altman and I am a first-year student running for Academic Programming and Standards Committee (APSC) Senator for next academic year. This year I served as the first-year representative on the Enrollment and Student Life Committee (ESLC). Like APSC, ESLC is an all-college committee comprised of students, faculty, and staff. Through this experience, I was able to learn so much about the different services offered at Dickinson and had the opportunity to attend the faculty meetings. I enjoyed the discussion-based weekly meetings on student life issues, but would love to learn more about the curriculum decision making process. Having already spent a year within the Student Senate system and with my keen passion for policy, I think I would serve our school well as APSC Senator.

In high school, as class president during my junior and senior years, I gained experience as a soundboard for the student body to the administration. I have used those skills this year when communicating in committee meetings as a representation of my class. I hope to become even better as a representative leader for the student body as APSC Senator next year.
