

INST Elective Courses. Updated Fall 2017

In addition to core course requirements, all IS majors must complete a cluster of four courses related to either their country/region of concentration or to the functional themes of "Globalization & Sustainability" or "Security Studies". The courses offered by various departments at Dickinson are subject to fluctuation, but the lists below will serve as a general guide to the possibilities. These lists are thus a starting point for discussions that you should have with your advisor regarding course selection for this part of the major.

"Globalization & Sustainability" Courses

Note: Students who elect to complete a "Globalization & Sustainability" cluster must take four courses that examine global and/or environmental issues from a transnational perspective. Depending on student interests and course availability, clusters can be composed of thematically-related courses or can mix diverse courses on a variety of global economic, environmental, and social issues.
