

Ensuring that Currently Declared Computer Science Students Are Able to Complete the program

For students beginning fall 2019, new curricular requirements take effect. For students who have enrolled at Dickinson in fall 2017 or fall 2018, options for completing the major or minor will fall into one of the scenarios A-E given below. Scenario F-H illustrate how new course offerings will be rolled in to meet the needs of students beginning the new major requirements in fall 2019. Course numbers given in boldface indicates new courses or modified versions of existing courses. For simplicity, this table shows only new courses (130, 190, 256, 290), courses with significant content changes (232, 332, 491, 492), scheduling changes (232, 256, 356). Paths showing all of the new major requirements for students matriculating in fall 2019 were given above in V.

Spring 23:						492	492	492	492

Notes:

- Students in scenarios A-C will complete the current major requirements. Those in Scenarios B and C will substitute COMP 256 for COMP 251 in the current requirements.
- Students in scenarios D-E may elect to complete either the current major requirements or the new major requirements. Note that students in scenarios D or E electing to complete the new major requirements would not be required to complete COMP 356 but must complete COMP 190 and COMP 290. This would have to happen in their third year. Thus, students in scenarios D or E who are planning to study abroad will be advised to complete the old major requirements.
- Students enrolling in Fall 2019 or later (scenarios F-H) will complete the new major requirements.
