

Fall 2019 INST Elective Courses

Globalization & Sustainability Concentration

1) Students in classes of 2020, 2021 with a Globalization & Sustainability concentration can select concentration courses from both the World Economy & Development & the Sustainability & the Global Environment lists.

2) Students in the class of 2022 forward must choose either a World Economy & Development concentration or a Sustainability & the Global Environment concentration with all concentration courses coming from the appropriate list.

World Economy & Development

INBM 230: International Organizational Behavior
INBM 240: Marketing in a Global Context
SOCI 237: Global Inequality

Sustainability & the Global Environment

ERSC 142: Earth's Changing Climate
ENST 370: Environment & Society
HIST 373: Ecological History of Africa
POSC 290: The Politics of Parks

Security Studies / Global Security Concentration

This list is applicable both for the classes of 2020, 2021 Security Studies concentration and the renamed Global Security concentration applicable to the class of 2022 forward.

COMP 203/INST 290: Cyber & Information Security
INST 277/POSC 277: International Politics of the Middle East
INST 283/POSC 283: Intelligence & National Security
INST 290/POSC 290: Politics of Southeast Asia
INST 290/POSC290: Russian Foreign Policy
POSC 208/PHIL 285: Justice in World Politics

Fall 2019 Security Studies Certificate Courses

Required Courses

INST 170/POSC 170: International Relations
INST 280/POSC 280: American Foreign Policy

Elective Courses

COMP 203/INST 290: Cyber & Information Security
INST 277/POSC 277: International Politics of the Middle East
INST 283/POSC 283: Intelligence & National Security
INST 290/POSC 290: Politics of Southeast Asia
INST 290/POSC290: Russian Foreign Policy
POSC 208/PHIL 285: Justice in World Politics

Capstone Seminar Options

INST 401: Structure & Change in the Global System
INST 401: Global Futures
POSC 390/EASN 390: Controversies in Chinese-American Relations

Note: INST 281 / POSC 281 American National Security Policy will be offered in Spring 2020