The Commencement Exercises

The first Dickinson College Commencement exercises were held in the Presbyterian church on the town square, and the occasion was something of a public holiday. Professors and students marched in procession, first from the college buildings in Liberty Alley and then from our present campus. Each graduate gave proof of his learning by delivering an address in Latin or English, a practice that continued through most of the 19th century. In later years, music was introduced as a restorative between orations, and as the number of graduates increased, the final oratory was reduced to one guest speaker, rewarded with an honorary doctorate.

The gowns worn by participants hearken back to the monastic robes of the Middle Ages. The hood—worn by clergy and students for warmth in drafty halls—was retained in specialized cases, such as academic distinction. In the United States, an intercollegiate commission in 1893 adopted a uniform code requiring bachelors' and masters' gowns to be made of cotton poplin or similar material, while silk or rayon is used for doctoral robes. Bachelors' gowns have pointed, open sleeves hanging to the knee, and masters' gowns have closed sleeves, with the arm brought through a slit at the elbow. Doctors' gowns have velvet facings down the front and full, bell-shaped sleeves, each trimmed with three bars of velvet. The black mortarboard cap is standard in the United States; doctors may wear a gold tassel, but all others wear black.

The hood is lined with silk in the official colors of the institution that granted the highest degree held by the wearer, while the color of the velvet border indicates the field of study within which the degree was awarded. Some of the latter designations are as follows: white, arts and letters; scarlet, divinity; purple, laws; golden yellow, science; dark blue, philosophy; light blue, education; brown, fine arts; pink, music; green, medicine; orange, engineering. With the duplication of college colors, some universities have authorized the use of an entire robe of a distinctive color, and others place an insignia on each side of the front.

Clerical gowns were worn by the earliest faculty but disappeared early in the 19th century. Curiously, students at Dickinson adopted the academic robes at Commencement before faculty, who did not appear in gown and hood until the procession of 1904. Previous generations of graduating seniors were distinguished only by their affiliation with one of the literary societies—the red rose of Belles Lettres or the white rose of Union Philosophical. During today's ceremony, graduating seniors who studied abroad during their Dickinson careers wear the flags of their host countries on their academic gowns.

In the college's early days, a Latin ritual was included in the Commencement ceremony, beginning with an inquiry by the president to the trustees: "Placetne vobis, viri admodum generosi, ut juvenes, qui cursum suum in hoece collegio nuper peregerunt, ad baccalaureatus in artibus gradum nunc admittantur?" To this one trustee solemnly answered for all: "Placet." The president completed the ceremony with words similar to those used now in English. The early diplomas also were in Latin and bore the signatures not only of the president but of every professor under whom the candidate had studied.

The first Dickinson honorary degree was an M.A. awarded to Nathaniel Randolph Snowden in 1790. Through most of the 19th century, masters' diplomas were awarded to all alumni who, three years after graduation, had given some evidence of being established in life—a sort of confirmation of the first award. (Once a generally accepted practice in American colleges, this no longer prevails.) The earliest honorary doctorates, awarded in 1792, were in divinity. Distinguished alumni have been so honored from an early date, including Roger Brooke Taney, LL.D., 1831; James Buchanan, LL.D., 1842; Spencer Fullerton Baird, D.P.S., 1856; Moncure Daniel Conway, L.H.D., 1892; and Zatae Longsdorff Straw, Sc.D., 1937.

Honorary Degrees

Eric H. Holder, Jr.

Eric Holder has served in government for more than 30 years, having been appointed to various positions requiring U.S. Senate confirmation by three U.S. presidents. In 1988, President Ronald Reagan nominated him to be a superior court judge for the District of Columbia. President Bill Clinton nominated Holder to serve as U.S. attorney for the District of Columbia in 1993. Confirmed by the Senate later that year, he became the first African American to head the country's largest U.S. attorney's office. Holder made community outreach a priority, establishing a domestic violence task force and forging partnerships with local law enforcement and civic groups. He also worked to reduce gun crime. In 1997, Holder was named deputy attorney general, a post that gave him the opportunity to expand on the initiatives he had launched as U.S. attorney.

From 2009 to 2015, Holder served as the 82nd attorney general of the United States. He is the first African American to hold that position, and his six-year tenure makes him the third-longest-serving attorney general in U.S. history. Shortly after he was confirmed, Holder delivered a controversial but fortuitous Black History Month speech to his justice department staff, saying the United States continues to be a "nation of cowards" in the way it confronts and understands issues of race, and he placed a "special responsibility" on the justice department to lead change. As the nation's top law enforcement officer and head of the Justice Department, Holder advocated for civilian trials for terrorists and investigated the New Orleans Police Department because of allegations of misconduct during Hurricane Katrina.

In 2014, Time magazine named Holder to its list of 100 Most Influential People, noting he had "worked tirelessly to ensure equal justice," a sentiment echoed by fellow Obama Cabinet member Lisa Jackson, who served as EPA administrator. In a livestreamed conversation for Apple's 2020 Worldwide Developers Conference, Jackson said Holder's "most notable attribute is his unwavering commitment to social justice." Jackson, now vice president at Apple, is the 2013 recipient of Dickinson's Rose-Walters Prize. In that same conversation, she and Holder discussed the current state of race in America, which Holder described as a "generational racial awakening," that will be "led by young people." He also called for a "new level of civic engagement."

Before his service as attorney general, Holder maintained a wide-ranging investigations and litigation practice at Covington & Burling LLP in Washington, D.C. He rejoined the firm in 2015, where he is currently a partner practicing litigation, public policy and government affairs and white collar defense and investigations. Holder is a graduate of Columbia College and Columbia Law School and holds bar admissions in New York and the District of Columbia.

Honorary Degrees

Esther T. Benjamin

As a global executive in the public, private and civil society sectors for more than 25 years, Esther Benjamin has led business partnerships as well as education, engagement, health and economic development programs in more than 100 countries. Currently, she is CEO and executive director of World Education Services (WES), a social enterprise dedicated to helping international students, immigrants and refugees achieve their educational and workplace goals in the U.S. and Canada. Previously, she was CEO for Africa Operations with Laureate Education, the global leader in providing access to high-quality, innovative institutions of higher education.

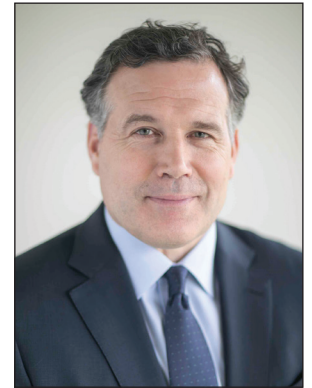

Benjamin has served in the administrations of President Barack Obama and President Bill Clinton. Under President Obama, Benjamin was associate director for global operations for the Peace Corps overseeing programs in nearly 80 countries. Following the 2008 elections, she served on the Obama-Biden presidential transition team. Under President Clinton, Benjamin served as a White House fellow working with labor secretary Alexis Herman on international policies and programs. For her career contributions, she received the White House Fellows Foundation and Association's IMPACT Award, which recognizes achievement and transformational contributions to society and the professional field. Earlier in her career, Benjamin was an executive with the International Youth Foundation and a United Nations humanitarian officer responsible for coordinating humanitarian aid in Somalia.

Benjamin serves on several boards, including American University's School of International Service, her graduate alma mater, which recognized her with its Outstanding Alumna Award, as well as the board of North Central College, her undergraduate alma mater, which twice recognized her as an Outstanding Alumna. Benjamin is a 2021 honoree of the One to World Annual Fulbright Awards for her contributions to international education and global cooperation. New York Times bestselling author Wes Moore profiled her as "The Globalist" in his book, The Work: Searching for a Life that Matters.

David McCormick

David McCormick's career has straddled the worlds of military, government, finance, philanthropy and business. Currently, as CEO of Bridgewater Associates, a global investment firm with more than $160 billion in assets, he oversees the firm's strategy, governance and business operations. He joined Bridgewater in 2009 and previously served as the firm's president before becoming CEO in 2020.

Previously, McCormick was the U.S. Treasury under secretary for international affairs in the George W. Bush Administration, serving as the country's top economic diplomat during the 2008 financial crisis. He went on to serve as deputy national security advisor for international economic policy, during which time he was the principal White House advisor to President Bush for international economic policy and acted as the president's personal representative and lead negotiator for the Group of Eight industrialized countries.

From 1999 to 2005, McCormick was a technology entrepreneur, serving as CEO and then president of two publicly traded software companies, FreeMarkets Inc. and Ariba Inc. He was named a Distinguished Service Professor of Information Technology, Public Policy and Management at Carnegie Mellon's Heinz College. He is a trustee for The Hospital for Special Surgery and the Aspen Institute, and he is chairman of the Atlantic Council's International Advisory Board.

A Pennsylvania native, McCormick is a graduate of the United States Military Academy at West Point and has a Ph.D. from the School of Public and International Affairs at Princeton University. He is a former Army officer and a veteran of the Gulf War.

THE SAM ROSE '58 AND JULIE WALTERS PRIZE AT DICKINSON COLLEGE FOR GLOBAL ENVIRONMENTAL ACTIVISM

HONORING NATURAL RESOURCES DEFENSE COUNCIL CO-FOUNDER JOHN ADAMS

This year Dickinson College awards the tenth-annual Sam Rose '58 and Julie Walters Prize at Dickinson College for Global Environmental Activism to Varshini Prakash.

Varshini Prakash is executive director and co-founder of Sunrise Movement, a grassroots organization of young people working to stop climate change and create good-paying jobs in the process. She and a handful of like-minded activists launched Sunrise Movement in the summer of 2017. "We were just young people who were fed up with seeing politicians kicking the can down the road, sweeping what is the greatest threat facing our generation under the rug and refusing to deal with the reality of the crisis at hand," Prakash told NPR.

Focusing on growth through grassroots organizing and political action with candidate endorsements, the group gained recognition and support after it organized a sit-in at House Speaker Nancy Pelosi's Washington, D.C., office in 2018 with backing from U.S. Rep. Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez. Now one of the largest youth movements in the country, Sunrise is leading the charge for the Green New Deal, a constellation of public policy proposals to address climate change while creating jobs and reducing economic inequality.

Prakash has used her growing public profile to tirelessly advocate for Sunrise's principles. Her work has been featured by The New York Times, The Washington Post, BBC News and MSNBC among others. She is the daughter of immigrants from India, and Prakash said the 2004 Indian Ocean tsunami was one of the first moments that pushed her toward getting involved in climate action.

Prakash was named to Forbes' 30 under 30 list for law and policy and to Time magazine's 100 Next, a list of rising stars shaping politics, popular culture, science and more. She is a graduate of the University of Massachusetts Amherst.

Committed to restoring and sustaining the natural world for future generations, Rose and Walters created this prize to focus attention on the need to reduce the impact of human lives on the planet, particularly given the rising population predictions for this century.

Dickinson, a national leader and innovator in sustainability education, challenges its students through classroom studies, living laboratories, service learning, student-faculty research and study abroad to build the knowledge and skills needed to create a sustainable world. Courses throughout the curriculum examine and seek solutions to national and global environmental problems. Dickinson's achievements and leadership in sustainability have earned the highest recognition from the Association for the Advancement of Sustainability in Higher Education, Sierra magazine, the Sustainable Endowments Institute, The Princeton Review and Second Nature.

The Rose-Walters Prize is given annually to an individual or organization that makes a defining difference and advances responsible action on behalf of the planet, its resources and people. Previous recipients are Armond Cohen, founder and executive director of the Clean Air Task Force; actor, film producer, philanthropist and environmentalist Pierce Brosnan; advocacy organization Our Children's Trust; Brett Jenks, CEO of Rare; Pulitzer Prize-winning author Elizabeth Kolbert; award-winning actor and environmental activist Mark Ruffalo; author and environmental activist Bill McKibben; Apple's vice president of environmental initiatives and former Environmental Protection Agency administrator Lisa Jackson; and award-winning nature photographer James Balog.

In 1888-89, Charles Francis Himes was acting president; in 1986-87, George Allan, the dean of the college, served as acting president; and in 2016-17 Neil B. Weissman, provost and dean of the college, served as acting president. During the periods 1816 to 1821 and 1832 to 1834 the college was closed.

History of the College

In 1773 the citizens of Carlisle founded a grammar school on land donated by Thomas and John Penn, but classes were temporarily suspended when the first schoolmaster left to serve at Valley Forge. With an optimism buoyed by colonial independence, Philadelphia physician Benjamin Rush proposed that the fledgling school be transformed into a college that would be “a source of light and knowledge to the western parts of the United States”—the wilderness lands stretching west from the Susquehanna River.

John Dickinson, governor of Pennsylvania and drafter of the Articles of Confederation, was persuaded, and on Sept. 9, 1783, a charter was approved by the Representatives of the Freemen of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. The new college, founded by Presbyterians but with an independent board of trustees, was dedicated to “the instruction of youth in the learned languages” and in the “useful arts, sciences, and literature.”

Charles Nisbet, a Calvinist minister from Scotland, was the first principal of the college. He insisted on rationality and high standards of learning and encouraged the founding of two of the nation’s oldest continuing literary societies, Belles Lettres (1786) and Union Philosophical (1789). U.S. President James Buchanan, class of 1809, was among the societies’ early student members.

The college’s first permanent building, Old West, was completed in 1805. Benjamin Latrobe, the architect of the Capitol building in Washington, contributed both preliminary designs and working drawings for the building. To him and to its builders, higher education was a cause upon which the life of their new nation depended, and Old West was built as a living monument to their conviction. Known as the “College Edifice,” the building was crowned by a weathervane replica of a classical sea deity, interpreted and rendered by a local coppersmith in the form of a mermaid. Over the years, it has become a distinctive symbol of this inland campus.

When Old West was erected, Dickinson’s trustees and donors had the same broad objective in mind—to secure the freedom and future of America by assuring an educated citizenry. They agreed that liberty must be founded on learning. This aim was inscribed on the college’s seal, a copy of which appears on the cover of this program. Among the donors were a U.S. president (Thomas Jefferson), a U.S. vice president (James Madison), a chief justice (John Marshall), members of President Jefferson’s cabinet and members of the Supreme Court—in all, more than 100 patriots and soldiers of the War for Independence.

In the early 19th century, Dickinson fell on hard times, briefly closing twice before coming under the sponsorship of the Methodist Church in 1833. The college was revitalized under the leadership of its new president, John Price Durbin, a former chaplain of the U.S. Senate.

During the Civil War, Dickinson sent students to fight on both sides, hopeful “that college loyalties would bind where civil strife separated.” In the years after the war, Dickinson leavened its abiding commitment to liberal-arts education with several innovations. The college became coeducational in 1884 in response to the determination and courage of its first woman student, Zatae Longsdorff, class of 1887. The law department, inaugurated in 1834, became the Dickinson School of Law in 1890. Since 1917 it has been independent of the college. Dickinson also introduced elective courses for its students at this time and experimented briefly with awarding doctoral degrees in cursu. Following World War I, President James Henry Morgan presided over a new educational experiment that required each student to graduate with a major field of concentration as a part of the general baccalaureate.

Since 1960, under the leadership of presidents Howard L. Rubendall ’31, Samuel A. Banks, A. Lee Fritschler, William G. Durden ’71, Nancy A. Roseman, Neil B. Weissman and Margee Ensign, Dickinson has developed and expanded a balanced and diverse liberal-arts curriculum that has fostered a wide range of distinctive multidisciplinary strengths that include innovative programming in global and sustainability studies; a willingness to tackle contemporary challenges through emerging fields such as security studies; a nationally celebrated workshop/laboratory approach to science education; abundant student-faculty research opportunities; extensive internship, study-abroad and service-learning options; and a distinctive first-year seminar program.

Dickinson’s picturesque campus has always served as a park and recreation area for students, its history punctuated by major fires, an 1863 Confederate Army bivouac and soldier parade drills in 1917 and 1942. In the early years, professors and students cultivated cabbages and onions on the grounds. Today, the campus’s abundant flowers and trees are augmented by produce, herbs and forage greens, which also thrive at the nearby organic College Farm. In warm weather, classes often are held on the campus green, and as in generations past, Commencement exercises and other ceremonious occasions take place by the “old stone steps” of Old West.
