

CENTER FOR SUSTAINABILITY
EDUCATION

Baird Sustainability Fellow Application 2023-24

Applications due by Noon on March 21, 2023 to sustainability@dickinson.edu

Name:

Year of Graduation:

Current GPA:

Major/s:

Minors/Certificates:

E-mail:

Phone:

How has your academic work, including academic courses and research, shaped your understanding of and engagement with sustainability challenges and solutions? In your response, focus on a small number of examples that have been particularly influential for you. (300 word limit).

How have your activities beyond the classroom shaped your understanding of and engagement with sustainability challenges and solutions? In your response, focus on a small number of activities that have been particularly influential for you. Examples of activities that you might write about include, but are not limited to, work with clubs and organizations, special projects, community service, internships, and paid work. (300 word limit).

List courses that you have taken that have contributed to your understanding of sustainability principles, challenges, and/or solutions. These can include Sustainability Investigations (SINV), Sustainability Connections (SCON), and other courses that you consider to have added to your understanding of sustainability. For each course, please provide the academic department, course number, and course title.

Describe a time when you aspired to advance sustainability goals by designing, proposing, implementing, or participating in a solution or response to a problem or opportunity. Your response should communicate your interpretation of sustainability, make evident the knowledge and skills you applied and/or developed in addressing the problem, describe the role you played, and identify any lessons learned that would inform how you might approach similar challenges in the future. (750 word limit).

You may, if you wish, provide an explanation of any aspects of your academic record that you would like the committee to understand. For example, you might explain incompletes, withdrawals, abnormally low grades, a GPA below 3.4, or any other matter.