The Commencement Exercises

The first Dickinson College Commencement exercises were held in the Presbyterian church on the town square, and the occasion was something of a public holiday. Professors and students marched in procession, first from the college buildings in Liberty Alley and then from our present campus. Each graduate gave proof of his learning by delivering an address in Latin or English, a practice that continued through most of the 19th century. In later years, music was introduced as a restorative between orations, and as the number of graduates increased, the final oratory was reduced to one guest speaker, rewarded with an honorary doctorate.

The details of the Commencement procession at Dickinson have varied, but the order has been preserved. Throughout much of the latter half of the 19th century, Trustee William Ryland Woodward, class of 1838, led the processions, followed by the head janitor, who wore a tall silk hat and carried the diplomas on a silver tray. In 1897 board member Horatio Collins King, class of 1858, was named the first marshal of the college. He led almost all of the processions during the next two decades, holding up a small wooden baton as an ensign of his authority. In the years since, 11 members of the faculty have carried the same baton while officiating as marshal.

In 1950, a more imposing symbol, the college mace, was fashioned by Mary O. Abbott. Carved in cherry and black walnut and surmounted by a bronze mermaid, the mace bears the seal of the college and bas-relief portraits of John Dickinson, Benjamin Rush and Charles Nisbet. Two rings and the finial on the shaft were carved from the stump of the walnut tree that grew where Denny Hall now stands and beneath which, according to tradition, George Washington stood as his army passed in review in 1794. Introduction of the mace into college ceremonies led to the selection of other professors to serve as mace bearer.

The order of procession is now the marshal, the mace bearer, faculty, administrators, the graduating class and the presidential party, which includes trustees and special guests.

The gowns worn by participants hearken back to the monastic robes of the Middle Ages. The hood—worn by clergy and students for warmth in drafty halls—was retained in specialized cases, such as academic distinction. In the United States, an intercollegiate commission in 1893 adopted a uniform code requiring bachelors' and masters' gowns to be made of cotton poplin or similar material, while silk or rayon is used for doctoral robes. Bachelors' gowns have pointed, open sleeves hanging to the knee, and masters' gowns have closed sleeves, with the arm brought through a slit at the elbow. Doctors' gowns have velvet facings down the front and full, bell-shaped sleeves, each trimmed with three bars of velvet. The black mortarboard cap is standard in the United States; doctors may wear a gold tassel, but all others wear black.

The hood is lined with silk in the official colors of the institution that granted the highest degree held by the wearer, while the color of the velvet border indicates the field of study within which the degree was awarded. Some of the latter designations are as follows: white, arts and letters; scarlet, divinity; purple, laws; golden yellow, science; dark blue, philosophy; light blue, education; brown, fine arts; pink, music; green, medicine; orange, engineering. With the duplication of college colors, some universities have authorized the use of an entire robe of a distinctive color, and others place an insignia on each side of the front.

Clerical gowns were worn by the earliest faculty but disappeared early in the 19th century. Curiously, students at Dickinson adopted the academic robes at Commencement before faculty, who did not appear in gown and hood until the procession of 1904. Previous generations of graduating seniors were distinguished only by their affiliation with one of the literary societies—the red rose of Belles Lettres or the white rose of Union Philosophical. During today's ceremony, graduating seniors who studied abroad during their Dickinson careers wear the flags of their host countries on their academic gowns.

In the college's early days, a Latin ritual was included in the Commencement ceremony, beginning with an inquiry by the president to the trustees: "Placetne vobis, viri admodum generosi, ut juvenes, qui cursum suum in hoece collegio nuper peregerunt, ad baccalaureatus in artibus gradum nunc admittantur?" To this one trustee solemnly answered for all: "Placet." The president completed the ceremony with words similar to those used now in English. The early diplomas also were in Latin and bore the signatures not only of the president but of every professor under whom the candidate had studied.

The first Dickinson honorary degree was an M.A. awarded to Nathaniel Randolph Snowden in 1790. Through most of the 19th century, masters' diplomas were awarded to all alumni who, three years after graduation, had given some evidence of being established in life—a sort of confirmation of the first award. (Once a generally accepted practice in American colleges, this no longer prevails.) The earliest honorary doctorates, awarded in 1792, were in divinity. Distinguished alumni have been so honored from an early date, including James Buchanan, LL.D., 1842; Spencer Fullerton Baird, D.P.S., 1856; Moncure Daniel Conway, L.H.D., 1892; and Zatae Longsdorff Straw, Sc.D., 1937.

Honorary Degrees

Brian J. Dorfler

Brian J. Dorfler, an experienced leader, has spent a career developing organizations' most valuable asset—their people.

In January, he was named chief human resources officer of Versant, Comcast's planned public spinoff of select media brands and digital businesses. Prior to this appointment, he served as the head of human resources for NBCUniversal's Media Group, an expansive enterprise that includes television networks and streaming services.

Dorfler also previously oversaw the Human Resources teams for the company's broadcast, entertainment, and international networks as well as the NBC Sports Group, NBCUniversal's Global Advertising division, Content Distribution, and NBCUniversal's direct-to-consumer portfolio, including the company's streaming service, Peacock.

Dorfler has held several HR leadership roles during his tenure at NBCUniversal, working with teams across CNBC, Corporate Finance, Global Operations & Technology, and Direct-to-Consumer, where he was part of the core team that officially launched Peacock in 2020 and developed a strategy for its success.

Dorfler is a U.S. Army veteran who served as a military intelligence officer in Europe from 1997 to 2001, supporting peacekeeping operations in both Bosnia and Kosovo. In 1997, Dorfler graduated from Dickinson with a bachelor's degree in English. As a student, he was a member of ROTC and an officer of the Delta Sigma Phi fraternity. Dorfler earned his master's degree in industrial & labor relations from Cornell University.

He supports Dickinson students through internships, career mentoring and The Brian J. Dorfler '97 and Christine M. Dorfler Scholarship, which was established in 2021 to help fund a deserving student who would not otherwise be able to attend Dickinson. Dorfler was recognized by Dickinson's Alumni Council as Career Champion of the Year in 2018. The award is presented to an alumnus who has provided significant and consistent contributions toward the advancement of the college's career center programming and services.

Dr. Jennifer Gass

Dr. Jennifer Gass has dedicated her career to advancing the breast health of women. She has been director of the Breast Health Center at Care New England in Providence, R.I., since 2021. In addition, she is Professor of Surgery and Obstetrics and Gynecology at the Alpert Medical School of Brown University, and she is the first woman to ascend to full professor of surgery on the teacher/scholar track at Brown University. She has been chief of surgery at Women & Infants Hospital in Providence since 2005.

Gass began her medical career as a trauma surgeon at Wayne State University in Michigan before moving to Rhode Island, where she served as an HMO general/breast-cancer surgeon at Harvard Pilgrim Healthcare and an attending physician in the Surgical Intensive Care Unit at Rhode Island Hospital. In 2001, she joined the Women and Infants Breast Health Center, where she assumed the fellowship director role in 2003.

Through her leadership, the Breast Health Center at Women & Infants was chosen as a site for a multi-institutional cryo-assisted lumpectomy trial. She also serves as principal investigator on the innovative MRI-guided breast cancer surgery trial through a collaboration with Dartmouth-Hitchcock Medical School. She has been recognized on Rhode Island Magazine's Top Doctors list each year since 2010.

Gass served as president of the National Consortium of Breast Centers and earlier served as program and policy chair. She served as program chair for the American Society of Breast Surgeons annual meeting in 2024 and is newly elected to their board of directors. For the American College of Surgeons, Gass has served as instructor in the annual Congress Oncoplastic Surgery Course and the 2025 course co-chair. Gass graduated from Dickinson in 1983 with a bachelor's degree in chemistry, with honors. As a student, she was a member of Delta Nu sorority and involved with the college's yearbook. She earned her M.D. from the University of Maryland Baltimore in 1987 and completed her general surgery residency program at Temple University in 1992.

Commencement Speaker

Tiffany Frey

Tiffany Frey is the most recent recipient of the Constance & Rose Ganoe Memorial Award for Inspirational Teaching. The only student-bestowed accolade at Dickinson, graduating seniors vote on the award each year. Class of 2024 President Deon Rosado lauded Frey while announcing her recognition at last Commencement, saying “she has unfettered passion for teaching and an innate capacity to help others.”

Frey was instrumental in launching Dickinson’s Human Anatomy course, which provides students access to two human cadavers, offering rare, firsthand exploration of the human body in a liberal-arts environment. She also takes part in collaborative student-faculty research in the college’s biochemistry & molecular biology labs.

In addition to teaching courses on human anatomy, physiology, molecular medicine and more, Frey’s research centers on inflammation in various settings, including sepsis, lung infection, diabetes and autoinflammatory diseases. Frey earned a bachelor’s degree from Penn State University and a Ph.D. from Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine.

THE SAM ROSE '58 AND JULIE WALTERS PRIZE AT DICKINSON COLLEGE
FOR GLOBAL ENVIRONMENTAL ACTIVISM
HONORING NATURAL RESOURCES DEFENSE COUNCIL CO-FOUNDER JOHN ADAMS

This year Dickinson College awards the 13th-annual Sam Rose '58 and Julie Walters Prize at Dickinson College for Global Environmental Activism to the Environmental Defense Fund.

With more than 3.5 million members, supporters and activists, Environmental Defense Fund creates transformational solutions to the most serious environmental problems. Working across the globe – including Europe, China, India and the United States – EDF links science, economics, law and innovative private-sector partnerships to turn solutions into action. It works for progress on methane pollution, clean electricity, clean transportation, forests, fisheries and oceans, healthy communities, fuels and feedstocks, agriculture, water, food, carbon markets and other critical environmental challenges.

EDF pioneered groundbreaking corporate partnerships, including Walmart's successful effort to cut a billion metric tons of climate pollution and GM's plan to sell only zero-emission vehicles by 2035. In 2023, the organization helped secure commitments from 50 oil and gas companies, representing 40 percent of global oil sales, to reduce their methane pollution by 90 percent by 2030. In 2024, EDF launched MethaneSAT, a satellite to measure and map methane pollution and help usher in a new era of climate accountability. It was a primary advocate for the overhaul of America's chemical safety laws in 2016 and the passage of historic climate investments in 2022.

The Rose-Walters Prize is given annually to an individual or organization that makes a defining difference and advances responsible action on behalf of the planet, its resources and people. Committed to restoring and sustaining the natural world for future generations, Sam Rose '58 and Julie Walters created this prize to focus attention on the need to reduce the impact of human lives on the planet, particularly given the rising population predictions for this century.

Dickinson, a national leader and innovator in sustainability education, challenges its students through classroom studies, living laboratories, service learning, student-faculty research and study abroad to build the knowledge and skills needed to create a sustainable world. Courses throughout the curriculum examine and seek solutions to national and global environmental problems. Dickinson's achievements and leadership in sustainability have earned the highest recognition from the Association for the Advancement of Sustainability in Higher Education, Sierra magazine, the Sustainable Endowments Institute, The Princeton Review and Second Nature. Additional Information

DIPLOMAS

At the request of past graduates and parents, we do not roll the actual diplomas. The official diplomas will be available for pickup by the graduate or a family member at the Holland Union Building Underground Patio immediately following Commencement. Please be sure to pick them up by 2 p.m.

PHOTOGRAPHS

Professional photographers hired by the college will take photos of graduates before and as they receive their diplomas from the president of the college. Island Photography of Port Washington, New York, will send your student proofs and make these photos available on their website within a few days after the event. If you have any questions, you can contact Island Photography by calling 516-767-1234 or visit their website islandphoto.com.

During the periods 1816 to 1821 and 1832 to 1834 the college was closed. In 1888-89, Charles Francis Himes was acting president; in 1986-87, George Allan, the dean of the college, served as acting president; and in 2016-17 Neil B. Weissman, provost and dean of the college, served as acting president; and from 2021-22, John E. Jones III served as interim president.

History of the College

In 1773 the citizens of Carlisle founded a grammar school on land donated by Thomas and John Penn, but classes were temporarily suspended when the first schoolmaster left to serve at Valley Forge. With an optimism buoyed by colonial independence, Philadelphia physician Benjamin Rush proposed that the fledgling school be transformed into a college that would be “a source of light and knowledge to the western parts of the United States”—the wilderness lands stretching west from the Susquehanna River.

John Dickinson, governor of Pennsylvania and drafter of the Articles of Confederation, was persuaded, and on Sept. 9, 1783, a charter was approved by the Representatives of the Freemen of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. The new college, founded by Presbyterians but with an independent board of trustees, was dedicated to “the instruction of youth in the learned languages” and in the “useful arts, sciences, and literature.”

Charles Nisbet, a Calvinist minister from Scotland, was the first principal of the college. He insisted on rationality and high standards of learning and encouraged the founding of two of the nation’s oldest continuing literary societies, Belles Lettres (1786) and Union Philosophical (1789). U.S. President James Buchanan, class of 1809, was among the societies’ early student members.

The college’s first permanent building, Old West, was completed in 1805. Benjamin Latrobe, the architect of the Capitol building in Washington, contributed both preliminary designs and working drawings for the building. To him and to its builders, higher education was a cause upon which the life of their new nation depended, and Old West was built as a living monument to their conviction. Known as the “College Edifice,” the building was crowned by a weathervane replica of a classical sea deity, interpreted and rendered by a local coppersmith in the form of a mermaid. Over the years, it has become a distinctive symbol of this inland campus.

When Old West was erected, Dickinson’s trustees and donors had the same broad objective in mind—to secure the freedom and future of America by assuring an educated citizenry. They agreed that liberty must be founded on learning. This aim was inscribed on the college’s seal, a copy of which appears on the cover of this program. Among the donors were a U.S. president (Thomas Jefferson), a U.S. vice president (James Madison), a chief justice (John Marshall), members of President Jefferson’s cabinet and members of the Supreme Court—in all, more than 100 patriots and soldiers of the War for Independence.

In the early 19th century, Dickinson fell on hard times, briefly closing twice before coming under the sponsorship of the Methodist Church in 1833. The college was revitalized under the leadership of its new president, John Price Durbin, a former chaplain of the U.S. Senate.

During the Civil War, Dickinson sent students to fight on both sides, hopeful “that college loyalties would bind where civil strife separated.” In the years after the war, Dickinson leavened its abiding commitment to liberal-arts education with several innovations. The college became coeducational in 1884 in response to the determination and courage of its first woman student, Zatae Longsdorff, class of 1887. The law department, inaugurated in 1834, became the Dickinson School of Law in 1890. Since 1917 it has been independent of the college. Dickinson also introduced elective courses for its students at this time and experimented briefly with awarding doctoral degrees in cursu. Following World War I, President James Henry Morgan presided over a new educational experiment that required each student to graduate with a major field of concentration as a part of the general baccalaureate.

Since 1960, under the leadership of presidents Howard L. Rubendall ’31, Samuel A. Banks, A. Lee Fritschler, William G. Durden ’71, Nancy A. Roseman, Neil B. Weissman, Margee Ensign and John E. Jones III ’77, P’11, Dickinson has developed and expanded a balanced and diverse liberal-arts curriculum that has fostered a wide range of distinctive multidisciplinary strengths that include innovative programming in global and sustainability studies; a willingness to tackle contemporary challenges through emerging fields such as security studies and data analytics; a nationally celebrated workshop/laboratory approach to science education; abundant student-faculty research opportunities; extensive internship, study-abroad and service-learning options; and a distinctive first-year seminar program.

Dickinson’s picturesque campus has always served as a park and recreation area for students, its history punctuated by major fires, an 1863 Confederate Army bivouac and soldier parade drills in 1917 and 1942. In the early years, professors and students cultivated cabbages and onions on the grounds. Today, the campus’s abundant flowers and trees are augmented by produce, herbs and forage greens, which also thrive at the nearby organic College Farm. In warm weather, classes often are held on the campus green, and as in generations past, Commencement exercises and other ceremonious occasions take place by the “old stone steps” of Old West.
