The Dickinson Promise

Funded through Dickinson's Campaign for Scholarships, the Dickinson Promise offers tuition-free education to every domestic admitted student whose family earns $125,000 or less, beginning with the class of 2030. For students from families earning $75,000 or less, financial aid packages will be loan-free.

It's only possible because of ongoing support from our donor community.

“ We thank all the donors who are making the promise possible and showing the incredible support of the Dickinson community for our students. We will continue to rely on our community of committed donors to move Dickinson and the Dickinson Promise forward, and to ensure that financial constraints never prevent students with the potential to change the world from becoming Dickinsonians.” —President John E.
